Bringing Clarity and Structure to the Global Naphtha Market

A Dedicated Outlook For An Increasingly Complex Market

Naphtha is not a single, homogeneous product. Natural gasoline, light naphtha, and heavy naphtha each have distinct pricing mechanisms and supply-demand dynamics that are often overlooked in traditional market coverage. The Global Naphtha Outlook is a purpose-built intelligence service designed specifically for naphtha markets, bringing structure and clarity by breaking the market down into its key components.

By delivering cut-level price context alongside forward-looking fundamentals, the service helps market participants understand how different naphtha cuts are priced, how they move, and how they interact across regions and end uses. This structured approach enables decision-makers to validate assumptions, gain visibility beyond their specific area of exposure, and plan with greater confidence.
